Timmy is a ten-year-old boy. Yesterday, after he finished his basketball practice at 4 p.m., he went to a new drink shop with his friend. They had cool drinks and talked with each other for about one and a half hours there. After they said goodbye to each other, Timmy was lost—he couldn't find his way home. Luckily, he saw a police station, so he went in and asked a police officer for help.

"Excuse me, sir. I'm lost. Could you please show me the way home? My house is behind First High School, between the library and the park," said Timmy.

"No problem. Let's go," said the police officer.

The police officer took him home in his police car. After fifteen minutes, the police officer found his home. His mother thanked the officer for his help.

Mrs. Martin works at a big company. She answers phone calls for her boss and helps with office work. She often works past her end time of 5:30, but today, she turned off her computer right on time—it was her son Ben's 14th birthday. She's taking him to a nice restaurant on the corner of Spring Road and Second Street. She'll take a bus after work and meet Ben there at a quarter past six. After dinner, they'll take the metro to a department store to get Ben a new pair of pants for his birthday. Mrs. Martin is a busy career woman, but she's also a great mom.
