Betty is standing right in front of the door of her house. She cannot open the door. The key to the house is not in her schoolbag. Can it be in the classroom at her school? Now, she can only wait for her parents, but they are not coming home before nine o'clock this evening. It's five o'clock. "What can I do?" Betty is looking at the street and thinking. Near the yellow house on the street, there is an old man. He is walking right to Betty. Betty is very nervous. She cannot go inside the house, and that old man is coming up to her. This is not good. Today is really not her day.

Betty: Don't come near me. I'm calling the police.

Old man: Oh no! I'm not a bad guy. Is this your key?

Betty: Oh yes! That's my key. I am sorry.

Old man: It's okay. Here.

Betty: Thank you.
